CULVER CITY, CALIF – February 5, 2007 – BreastImplantsUSA.com has been making it progressively easier for women to find Board Certified breast augmentation surgeons on the internet. Women can search for doctors in their area, read articles, discuss specific topics and concerns, view before and after photos of various procedures and patients, and can contact the doctors all from one website.

“To find a plastic surgeon, we wanted to make it as user friendly as possible,” said David Phillips, President and CEO of BreastImplantsUSA.com. “This is why patients can search by state, city, zip code, the plastic surgeon’s name, practice and more. The goal of the site is to educate patients on plastic surgery and make it as easy as possible for our patients to find their board certified plastic surgeons.”

Searching for the perfect breast augmentation surgeon is a crucial and very important process. BreastImplantsUSA.com only lists Board Certified Plastic Surgeons and maintains a limited number of spots narrowing down the woman’s choice to only the top doctors in her area.

The decision to have breast augmentation surgery is a very critical and time consuming process. Finding information on the internet about breast augmentation can be frustrating. Poor research and guidance can lead to bad decisions with equally bad results. By offering women one complete portal of resources, a pool of readily available doctors who have well trained staff members to answer questions and concerns those women may have about the procedure, BreastImplantsUSA.com aids women with gaining the confidence they need.

"Our work doesn't start with the operation; it starts with the consultation," says Dr. Scott Miller of San Diego. "It's important to plan carefully and work meticulously, so you get results that are both natural looking and long lasting."
