ABC Office joins forces with Acroprint, an innovator in payroll and timekeeping equipment.

KAYSVILLE, Utah, February 2007 – ABC Office, a supplier of office and payroll equipment for 27 years, announces the addition of the ATR120 Electronic Time Clock by Acroprint to their line of time clocks and payroll systems. The ATR 120 is part of Acroprint’s high-tech time clocks and labor management equipment. ABC Office is offering this equipment at <http://www.abcoffice.com/atr120.htm>. ABC Office’s entire line of time clocks can be found at <http://www.abcoffice.com/timeclock1.htm>.

The ATR120 Electronic Time Clock is a traditional-style punch clock that prints dates and time on punch cards to record employee in/out times and hours worked. The ATR120 can record regular or military time in weekly or biweekly format. It self-adjusts for date and Daylight Savings Time and uses two-color printing to highlight early and late punches for easy editing. The internal battery backup keeps it constantly operating, even during power outages.

The addition of the ATR120 Electronic Time Clock brings another quality Acroprint product to ABC Office’s time clock and payroll management line. Acroprint has been an industry innovator and leader in designing and manufacturing time clocks and time keeping software for over 30 years. Acroprint is renown for their high performance biometric time clocks as well as traditional punch card clocks. The company was founded in 1969 and is headquartered in Raleigh, North Carolina.

Time clocks have been a mainstay for recording employee labor hours since Willard Bundy invented the first punch clock in 1888. Time clocks are cost effective and more reliable than employee “honor systems”, when employees manually write down their time worked. Time clocks have various designs ranging from traditional punch card time clocks to new digital ID biometric clocks that scan finger or handprints.
