... Children come to understand right and wrong through exciting and creative adventures.

In the Adventures in Learning Land book series, Pola Muzyka brings stories about making right choices together with artistic activities. Four ordinary children are about to discover the mystery of Learning Land. Each story takes them on a wondrous adventure. These four always seem to run into trouble as ordinary kids do. Fortunately, before they suffer the consequences of some wrong choices they make during, something very unusual happens. An angel takes them to the workshop of the “master teacher” in the magical world of Learning Land.

At the workshop they are taught a creative project, which, while they are completing, teaches them to deal rightly with their situation. The children reading the book can also complete these artistic activities with step by step instructions included in the books. The first of these great books is now available as an audio book featuring the voice talents of Ed Knutson. The audio book can be used with the printed book to teach reading skills. Muzyka explains how the stories came about, “As I put my young son to sleep at night, I would make up stories that had biblical morals in them. The stories helped him figure out what to do when faced with issues during the day. It worked for me. Now it's time to share those stories and help other parents and children as well.

Raised on a sheep farm in the Pocono Mountains, Pola Muzyka entered the arts field upon graduation from High School. She studied art and drama in NY and Los Angeles, then moved to Italy, where she was inspired to incorporate her art with her dramatic talent. She has starred in several TV shows, movies and documentaries, and utilizes her artistic talents whenever the need arises.
