Graphic design artists know that opportunities to showcase their talents are scarce. However, there is a premier site for both novice and expert Photoshop users to share their work and learn new skills. At www.photoshoptalent.com, anyone can register their work for weekly Photoshop contests with prize winnings. Best of all, the entire site is free to use!

How does it work? Each Thursday, eight new Photoshop contests begin at the Website. There are two types of contests: thematic-based and input image-based. Users can create an original Photoshop piece or alter an existing picture that matches the given theme or image and submit their work to the competition. Each contest runs for 10 days while registered members vote for the top entries to determine a winner. Each user earns a certain level of voting power based on the ability to select the winner during each contest.

As a user's accuracy increases, so does his or her power. Contest winners receive a certain number of credits, which can be transferred into real monetary value.

Anyone is eligible to submit to PhotoShopTalent's contests. The majority of contests are open to everyone, regardless of experience or knowledge. However, some competitions are designated for specific skill levels, and these Photoshop contests often carry bigger prizes. Websites, companies and organizations can sponsor unique contests with their own prizes as well. For inexperienced users, a variety of Adobe Photoshop tutorial programs and training options are available at no cost, which makes learning the basics of image manipulation easy and convenient.

PhotoShopTalent members have unlimited hosting space for their Photoshop. With convenient uploading options and user-friendly voting methods, this is a place that gives everyone interested in Photoshop a chance for recognition of their own work.
