June 24, 2007 - PRLog -- Jeffrey Daniel of Shalamar, Street Dance, Choreography and Moonwalk fame will be releasing a Solo Album in the Autumn of 2007. His forthcoming CD will bring together the JD fusion of soul, funk and dance.

Jeffrey came to the public's attention as a dancer on the US TV show Soul Train. From Soul Train evolved Shalamar - a band that sold 25 million albums world-wide with hit records such as "A Night to Remember", "Friends" and "There it is". With Shalamar he introduced West Coast Street Dance into Europe and started a huge dance craze - body popping, robotics, locking and whacking with his amazing skills as a dancer. JD is the man that taught Michael Jackson the Moonwalk and later went on to choreograph "Bad", co-choreograph "Smooth Criminal" and work as a creative consultant on Ghost. The Moonwalk debate is still an ongoing topic generating tremendous interest all over the world with over 10,000 entries on YouTube and one million three hundred thousand on google alone.

For the first time he is bringing together all of his individual talents and launching a solo career that will see him perform as a singer, songwriter, guitarist and West Coast dance icon. Jeffrey Daniel will be touring in the autumn to promote the album release.
