Andorra – 08/28/07

This is no sweepstakes game of chance. Play “Desestressing,” on the Internet and win points towards the grand prize: a spa package of 4 days of treatments and 3 hotel nights. The sponsor? Caldea, Europe’s largest thermoludic centre in one of its smallest countries.

“Desestressing” is a play on words in Spanish, “de-stress”, and serves to emphasize the main benefits of Caldea’s treatments. The game instructions are in Spanish and Catalan languages, but the game is universal. Deposit the stressed out characters into Caldea’s main lagoon and take them out when they’re ready. Those with the most points win one of the 100 prizes being offered, and have up to a year to book. Among the more than 80 treatments offered at Caldea are: anti-cellulite LPG Endermologie sessions, flotation, algae body wraps, underwater massages, Thai massages, and of course, chocotherapies and vinotherapies.

Log onto the game website at www.caldea.com/desestressing by September 30th, and play as much and as often as you like. Gain additional points by inviting friends to register. Check your ranking online to see if you’re winning the grand prize or one of the other 99 packages.

About Caldea:

More than a spa, Caldea’s thermal waters originate from the Pyrenees mountains between France and Spain. At 68°C, the waters are the warmest in the region and are naturally rich in sulfur and other minerals. The therapeutic properties of thermal water include: anti-analgesic and anti-decongestant properties, as well as corporal toning and psychic rebalance. Caldea was opened in 1994, and it is located in Andorra, between France and Spain.
