Baltimore, MD --- The executive committee of Baltimore's Fashion Week met on November 15, 2007, and they decided to lower the designers' placement fee. "We wanted to ensure that everyone can afford to display their collection so we went for a more reasonable fee", says Sharan Nixon.

The designer's placement fees were $250 for student designers. The designer's placement fee was $500 for professional designers. The new placement fees are $100 for student designers and $225 for professional designers. "Whether you're showing your lines for the first time or you are a seasoned professional, we want you to be able to showcase your talent", says Sharan Nixon.

As the first official Baltimore's Fashion Week, Sharan wants to make sure artists and talent across the Mid-Atlantic will have the chance to be showcased on a national level.
