With free online child education shows, Cullen's Abc's (<http://www.cullensabcs.com>) is proactively addressing the need for universal preschool education. Now everyone can provide their children with a daily dose of entertaining preschool education.

Cullen Wood, Founder of Cullen's Abc's, has created the child education shows from her vast library of videos. Each show is made up of five selected videos that are specifically ordered and duplicated three times in a row. The shows are intended to develop young children's attention, spatial ordering, memory, higher order cognition, language, and gross and fine motor skills. The shows are intended to be part of a child's daily schedule for five consecutive days, and watched at the same time every day. The shows use music, movement, interaction, and repetition to develop children's skills. Each show is approximately 20 minutes in length, and can be used by anyone involved with young children — parents, grandparents, family, friends, babysitters, homeschoolers, daycare providers and teachers.

"These shows are based on how I teach during circle time in the classroom." states Cullen. "Each show starts with a sit-down activity followed by a stand-up movement activity and then rotates these type of activities."

Currently available at Cullen's Abc's (<http://www.cullensabcs.com>) are three child education shows:

Cullen's Abc's is pioneering the use of online video to distribute free child educational videos. There are videos for children to watch interactively with adults, and videos specifically for adults to watch for activity ideas. Cullen's Abc's has produced hundreds of educational and entertaining videos for young children and adults involved with young children. These preschool videos have been viewed over three quarters of a million times. Cullen's Abc's is the creation of Cullen Wood, who has been working with young children since
