

Mitt Romney Asked TO Quit?

Ron Paul triggers desperate moves. When Mitt Romney announced he was suspending his campaign because .....

When Romney announced he was suspending his campaign because a continued fight would hinder the launch of a national campaign, intelligent listeners would have written it off as mere rhetoric. If he was stepping aside for John McCain, he would have said so.

It appears the “insiders” are silently but desperately needing to sponsor another candidate better than McCain to unite the conservative base? McCain is stumbling over himself trying to become what he is not, a conservative.

Perhaps at this late date, the insiders are planning Romney’s replacement? Major General Jerry Curry, a U.S. Army retired Major General, a veteran of 34 years of active duty, a Spirit-filled, Bible-believing Christian and a mixture of African, European and American Indian?

Think it might be too late for General Curry to enter the race?

Not according to the Presidential election of 1968. Interestingly similar, the anti-war sentiment was then the leading issue. President Lyndon Johnson found that out when anti-war candidate Senator Eugene McCarthy nearly upset him in the New Hampshire primary. His near loss triggered Robert Kennedy (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Robert\_F.\_Kennedy\_presidential\_campaign,\_1968) to announce his campaign for president then attempt to persuade McCarthy to withdraw from the race. His attempt split the anti-war movement. The race with two anti-war candidates against the incumbent was warming up when President Johnson stunned the nation by dropping out of the race. Within a month, the establishment had Hubert Humphrey declare his candidacy. He entered the race in late April 1968. When he did, he entered the race too late to enter any primaries, but he had the support of President Johnson and many Democratic insiders.

The rest of the story is history. He conveniently went on to win the nomination only after Robert Kennedy’s assassination on June 5, 1968. Although Ron Paul is on the Republican side of the campaign, he stands on a ticket Kennedy would endorse. Both of them support a non-aggression foreign policy, racial and economic justice, and decentralization of power.

The “insiders” know there is a risk their chosen one, Hillary Clinton, just may not win the Democratic primary. If the Republican contender must face Obama in the general, it will require someone other than flawed McCain to attract the imagination of the conservatives, independents and some.

As long as we can see the strategy, we know the establishment sees it too. How better for them now to sponsor a third candidate; fresh face, no baggage, and with strong leanings to the Christian right. General Jerry Curry, with Military leadership under his belt and an inherent American ancestral background to boost; Black, European and American Indian, would be a formidable opponent especially for Obama.

All of this just to keep true Patriot Ron Paul from rising up! Let’s not give up the revolution.
