Ivan spend some time talking on his CNC Sears webpage about what a great importance it is to have Computer Numerical Control make its way to a marketplace like CNC Sears. Here is an excerpt from Ivan's website on CNC Sears:

“How do you know we hit the mainstream?

In a word, Sears. Craftsman now has a CNC Wood Router in their fleet of tools. The tool's name is Compucarve. It is relatively small and can do basic wood routing. It is a black box design with proprietary design software. As of this writing it is around $2,000. When it first came out, there were reports of bugs. Those reports have died down as the design stabilizes and is improved. “
