Dated: May 13, 2008

Garh Jaisal special guests will enjoy the Maharaja room in 2008 at a 50% discount

Garh Jaisal Hotel, nestled within the walls of the 11th century fort in Jaisalmer, Rajasthan is celebrating by offering the romantic red Maharaja Room overlooking Jaisalmer for half price.

Each day during the summer Garh Jaisal is offering one lucky single or couple the opportunity to secure a discounted booking for the Maharaja Room between months of May and December. This is a cozy room, comfortable for 2 people with an amazing view overlooking the city of Jaisalmer.

Interested visitors need to check the website each day, as Garh Jaisal will be allowing one booking to be made per day at 50% off (staying 3-7 nights) if guests are staying between May and December. This includes the holidays and festivals. The special is available on www.garhjaisal.com only.

Jacqui McMullen, Garh Jaisal Customer Service, says "this is a special to celebrate Garh Jaisal's second successful year in business and to allow those who may not normally be able to budget for Garh Jaisal to enjoy 3 special nights in this amazing location during their journey through India."

Garh Jaisal delights guests with bright rooms decorated in bohemian opulence, each with a view over the city. Little extras include unlimited mineral water, chai and the use of comfortable lightweight robes to enjoy in the privacy of the room or on the exclusive rooftop deck. Each room has a private bathroom with western style toilet, shower with hot water and locally sourced toiletries.

On the ancient trade route, in the heart of the Thar Desert, Jaisalmer is a remote settlement populated by palaces and havelis. Sandstone architecture is predominant with abundant rooftop vistas, charming facades and winding streets and pathways. To view the golden fort from the city with its 99 turrets is almost identical to what was seen by merchants on their overland camel caravans to central Asia centuries ago.

Jaisalmer is famous for embroidery, Rajasthani mirror work, rugs, blankets, antiques and old stone work. Tie-dye and other fabrics are made and color abounds everywhere. The Garh Jaisal team encourages guests to enjoy inspired creations by local artisans and to immerse and have fun with the culture and people.

Rooms from $99usd per night
