

Halfway House in Delray Beach, Florida Launches New Program

By Integrity Way

Dated: May 25, 2008

When an individual leaves a detoxification center or a inpatient drug and alcohol treatment facility, they will be met with open arms by a senior resident who will help them the first week at Integrity Way.

Integrity Way Transitional Housing will be implementing a (NRM) New Resident Mentorship program in hopes of giving all new residents added support. Integrity Way's (NRM) New Resident Mentorship program is expected to launch June 1, 2008. "By getting new residents started on the right path right away, we will eliminate some of the fear that comes with change." says Matthew Brindisi, new CEO at Integrity Way.

Just a few of the ways a senior resident may help a new resident of Integrity Way is to bring them to recovery based meetings, help them develop a support network and teach them the proper way to do household chores. "The program is designed to reduce fears, work on team building skills, inspire friendships and encourage peer support and accountability," says Matthew Brindisi.

Transitional Housing continues to be one of the most effective ways of attaining continued abstinence from drugs and alcohol. Our sober living community believes that with the proper education, support, and willingness, everyone has the opportunity to recover from substance abuse. We provide our residents with the structure, tools, and guidance they need to become a valuable, loving, happy, family-oriented person again. It is our mission to provide you with a safe and sober living environment on your journey to recovery.
