SMS uses ProspectMatch to supply annuity leads to its annuity producers

A survey of 3,000 financial advisors shows that the #1 challenge of financial service professionals is efficiently gaining quality new clients. But the ProspectMatch system from Javelin Marketing makes it much easier for SMS Annuity Producers.

Marketers of financial products and services waste much of their time seeking to meet interested investors and insurance buyers. The ProspectMatch service from Javelin Marketing uses the Internet to facilitate matching insurance professionals with interested consumers. As a result, consumers find information they need faster, they have the option to talk with a professional and the financial professional uses his time speaking with interested consumers of his advice, products and services,

The system allows consumers searching the Internet for information and answers on financial issues to submit requests for educational booklets or for a financial plan. These requests are then matched with an agent in the consumer's local area. This allows the financial professional to make contact with motivated proactive new prospects rather than wasting hours weekly searching for prospects or engaging in expensive marketing such as seminars or direct mail.
