

YouPublish.com Continues Moving at the Speed of Thought

In its first month, new self-publishing portal YouPublish sees 500% increase in registered content creators and reviews by over 9,000 blogs and publishing websites

June 25, 2008 - PRLog -- YouPublish.com, an innovative new web site that allows users to publish files of any type and to deliver them either for free or paid is attracting global attention.

YouPublish went Live on May 8th and has already attracted more than 140,000 page views from users in 126 countries. The site is mentioned on more than 9,000 blogs or publishing websites, and so far more than 4,900 publishers have registered to post their files.

Unlike other self-publishing sites, YouPublish supports any file type (and any combination of files), so users can upload books, music, audios, videos, photographs, spreadsheets, animations, CG files, seminar packages or even software. YouPublish also allows both free and paid content, giving it a flexibility not seen in many other portals. The slick, streamlined interface ensures that authors and content creators can register and post their files in just two to three minutes.

“We’re moving faster than we expected because a lot of people are referring their friends and family members,” says marketing director Steve Conlee. “In less than a month, we’re already sending out commission checks to people who are selling their content on our site. One of the most rewarding things for us is to see how varied the users of YouPublish are...from authors and business coaches to health experts, visual artists, and students.”

According to Conlee, the unique offering of content creators on YouPublish provides consumers with a great opportunity to find interesting information with thousands of free downloads available. Titles on the site include such offerings as Changing The World One Hug at a Time, God Knows Exactly Where You Are, No Sex in the City, Grieving the Loss of Your Pet, Survival Tips for Small Business, The Jedi Handbook, and The Sobriety Test: A Tool for Effective Parenting to name a few.

YouPublish.com is a perfect combination of the self-publishing aspects of YouTube, the social networking features of Facebook, and the selling features of Amazon all rolled into one. This unique fusion makes YouPublish a one-stop publishing and file sharing destination and allows creators of all types to effortlessly manage, publish, and distribute their materials in one location and to reach a massive audience worldwide.

Every author/content publisher has their own unique URL and home page where their works are showcased, and in the near future YouPublish will allow users and creators to communicate and build communities around the files they find on the site. Additionally, YouPublish pays content providers 50% of their sales, compared to the 11% to 35% commissions typically paid elsewhere.
