Washington,DC-California diabetics who are recently unemployed, or who have credit problems stopping them from obtaining diabetic supplies or financial assistance for life essentials, here is important news: Government and private institutions are now joining forces to fight the diabetes epidemic and make it easier for California diabetics to obtain diabetic supplies and assistance.

The Federal Government has billions of dollars in free aid and assistance available for California diabetics and California diabetic small businesses. Many of these grants, loans and other sources of aid are seldom awarded because eligible diabetics and entrepreneurs do not know about them, or they just give up searching after being confronted with all the bureaucratic red tape.

Terry Newborn, a researcher for Government Diabetes.Org located in Washington, DC has reported, "There are billions of dollars in assistance and grants earmarked for people diagnosed with diabetes. Public and private funds are now available for them to buy diabetics supplies, and get financial assistance or for any worthwhile purpose. For diabetics who are handicapped, sixty-two to sixty-five or older, the program offers assistance with necessary home repairs, for example, replacing of leaky roofs, porch repairs, plumbing and building of modern indoor restroom facilities. Repairs that are essential to daily living and diabetics need to know that the special programs are here to help them." In addition, he reported that new financial resources have been committed to help California's unemployed diabetics get job training and re-enter the job market.

"Now is the time for California's diabetics to act if they need money for any worthwhile purpose," urged Newborn. He also revealed that several reduced-cost and free programs now exist to help diabetics and the economically disadvantaged of California who have been diagnosed with diabetes. Such programs include energy assistance, free prescriptions medicine programs, home repair and legal aid.

Government Diabetes.Org offers the program that provides the latest information on the above programs. It covers government job listings, financial assistance, phone bill assistance, diabetic recipes, free grant, scholarship and loan resources available for a wide variety of purposes, including business start-ups for diabetics. The kit also includes a list of more than fifteen hundred professionals offering diabetics free advice and business guidance via Washington,DC.
