Words are powerful tools by which we communicate with others, as well as communicating within ourselves. Your inner voice helps you perceive the data received from the environment, as well as drawing conclusions from it. You proceed on a specific course on your journey called life, based on those perceptions. You develop a philosophy that surrounds those words. Your philosophy guides your decision making capabilities. Your philosophy gives those words a personal meaning. What is, or what is not important is decided, based in part on your philosophy. The "how" you interpret those words are driven by your philosophy. The underlying themes of the books written by Dr Ronald G Sherman, are related to inspiring and motivating you to think about how one interprets words (food for thought). Within the realm of one's philosophy, the books written by Dr Sherman are additional tools to help you achieve results/goals on your life's journey.

" There are always possibilities".
