TULSA, Okla. – Since March 2004, the Cellular Phone Repair Center has been providing northeastern Oklahoma and northwestern Arkansas with quick, quality cell phone repairs. Now, they're expanding that service nationwide.

The new mail-in service is completely automated via the company's website, <http://www.cellularphonerepaircenter.com>. Customers anywhere in the United States can just click on the "National Repair Service" tab and fill out the form to start the process.

"We're taking our 'here for you' attitude that we have in our retail locations and are offering the same quality service to customers nationwide," said Corey Hunt, expansion coordinator for the Cellular Phone Repair Center.

The cell phone repair process is simple. After filling out the form and confirming their information, customers can print off a shipping label and mail their phone. Once the Cellular Phone Repair Center receives the phone, they can call the customer and report what's wrong, how much it will cost, and how long it will take.

"We can complete most repairs within 24 hours after we receive the phone," Hunt said. "As soon as they're fixed, we can ship those cell phones right back to their owners."

The quick turnaround time is just one benefit the Cellular Phone Repair Center offers their customers. They carry a large selection of parts for almost any major phone brand.

"It doesn't matter what brand or model cell phone you have," Hunt said. "Chances are we have just the part you need."

Thanks to their many years of cell phone repair service, the professional technicians at the Cellular Phone Repair Center have seen – and fixed – just about anything that can happen to a cell phone. The cell phone repairs they do include liquid damage, broken LCD screens, broken flex cables and bad charge ports, just to name a few.

"The repairs we do typically cost $50 or less, which is much less expensive than buying a new cell phone," said Hunt. "There's not alot you can do to a cell phone that we haven't already seen."

If you've damaged your cell phone, let the technicians at the Cellular Phone Repair Center get you connected again. Visit them at <http://www.cellularphonerepaircenter.com/nationalrepair.html> to get started.
