

Barack Obama Convention Watch Party "One Nation Under a Change"

Public gathering to share in the historic moment when Barack Obama accepts the nomination for president of the United States at the Democratic National Convention.

Aug. 21, 2008 - PRLog -- Mentaltainment, LLC, will host a Barack Obama Convention Watch Party to celebrate the historic moment of his nomination acceptance speech for President of the United States of America. The event will take place on Thursday, August 28, 2008, at Luella's Restaurant, 7955 Tara Boulevard, Jonesboro, GA 30236. The time is from 8:00 p.m. until 12 midnight.

This celebratory Watch Party is unlike the typical Watch Party because it will feature live entertainment. Local artists will perform socially-conscious songs and some of metro Atlanta's finest spoken word artists will be sharing positive and encouraging messages through their poetry. There will also be an open mic session for participants to share their thoughts about what Senator Obama's campaign has meant to them. After Senator Obama's speech, there will be an after party.

Senator Obama's campaign thus far has been a surprising success against tremendous odds, beating out rival Hillary Clinton, one of the most popular and seasoned politicians in the country. This election has inspired over four million people to register and become first-time voters.

Mentaltainment's motto is "Information Disguised as Entertainment", and this event is typical of most of their events in that substantive information will be disseminated while the audience is entertained.

This event is a family affair and suitable for all ages. In fact, parents are encouraged to bring their children out so they can be a part of history.

Angie Mills, a partner in Mentaltainment, LLC, says, "We decided to put on a public gathering so a larger crowd could gather together to make this occasion more significant, festive, and memorable. I'm sure we will have a capacity crowd."

Luella's Restaurant is located near the intersection of Tara Boulevard and Highway 138. The restaurant has four wide-screen televisions, a capacity for 250 people, and plenty of free parking. Their food is American Fare. This event is free and open to the public.

Mentaltainment, LLC, is a full-service entertainment company that has provided event planning and entertainment services for schools, universities, churches, weddings, private events, and festivals in metro Atlanta and around the country since 2000.
