Americans spend twice as much on litigation as on new automobiles. And in the land of litigation, people need to make sure they are covered.

Katherine Holloway of North Carolina announced her new website today which is focused on protecting individuals and families against unexpected legal battles. The Prepaid Legal Plan website highlights assistance with specific legal issues, credit, and identity theft. http://www.squidoo.com/pre_paid_legal_services

Part of the legal system in the United States provides each American who feels they've been victimized or injured, the ability to receive justice through the US court system. While this is indeed necessary, it's also led to the rise in everything from a hair in a salad bowl to a sister owing another back utility bills. Prepaid Legal Services, answers the question, "What are my legal rights?"

"When a person is caught in the middle 80% range of income earners, chances are they have no attorney on retainer, nor will they qualify for public aid." says Katherine Holloway who tells her own story.

"My son was hurt in an accident about three weeks ago. He tried to file for unemployment and found out that someone was receiving unemployment under his social security number. I made a phone call to PrePaid Legal Services, Inc. I didn't miss any work and there was no out of pocket expense. The lawyer called me back after about ten minutes, instructed me as to what to do and we had the matter straightened out in two days."

Holloway's site http://www.squidoo.com/pre_paid_legal_services offers tips to avoid legal battles, eliminate the potential of identity theft and resources where individuals can make sure they are covered in case someone decides to sue them.

About Katherine Holloway, PrePaid Legal Associate

I was introduced to Pre-Paid Legal Services about two years ago. At that time I became a member. I knew at some point in my life I would need legal counsel if nothing but submitting a "Will". I also saw into the future that life was going to be complicated and that I needed someone on my side with whom I could go to advise me on any future endeavors.
