Las Vegas Filmmakers point cameras at classic Clich'es

Las Vegas, NV– Las Vegas-based indie- film group Vision Dynamics Entertainment has started production on an original television pilot called VEGAS SCHMEGAS. The show surrounds the comical daily grind of Vegas cliches such as Strippers, Showgirls and would-be Lounge Singers. The show will be filmed at various locations around Las Vegas beginng in November, and will feature all Las Vegas talent.

Vision Dynamics Entertainment has been shooting indie film in Las Vegas for a decade. Despite the challenges facing Hollywood outsiders, the group of inspiring filmmakers maintains their dreams of launching a film movement from Las Vegas. The team plans to use the twenty-five minute presentation as a pitch for cable television. The creators are also not ruling out the possibilities of finding local businesses to sponsor the show for play on local television venues.

Vegas Schmegas is a sketch comedy show that revolves around comical Las Vegas residents. The show echoes the styles of other TV successes such as Little Britain and Kids in the Hall.

Kelly Schwarze, Director of Vegas Schmegas says, “This show is more for the locals than anything. People outside of Vegas will love it because its Vegas, but those who live here will certainly get the inside humor.”
