

Ixium Launches New Peripheral Pink Series

By S. Wang

Dated: Nov 01, 2008

Fashionable look now in your computer, specially designed for modern women

Ixium, computer manufacturer focused in ATX cases and peripherals, launches new pink peripherals series specially designed for girls.

With this new pink series, Ixium (<http://www.ixium-int.com>) focuses in a growing woman specialized market, with fashionable mice that bring a personal and charming touch to any computer.

The first product is minimouse MN100, also available in silver, black and blue colors. MN100 is an optical mouse with 800 DPI resolution that includes USB connection and retractable cable to carry anywhere and use with your laptop.

Teeny series is also designed in fashionable vivid pink, with chromed sides special limited edition now available. It has USB interface and is ideal for both notebook computer and desktop stations.

For more information, visit us at <http://www.ixium-int.com>

Category	Computers, Games, Multimedia
Tags	computer, mouse, mice, peripherals, pink, Fashion
Email	Click to email author
Country	United States