

What is a Whiplash Claim Worth?

Whiplash injury occurs when you neck is jolted back and forth. The symptoms of the injury need not occur on the very same day of the accident. May people have the doubt? What is a whiplash claim worth.

Nov. 1, 2008 - PRLog -- When a whiplash injury occurs, some of the symptoms may not surface immediately and can emerge after a few months. So, as soon as an accident happens, the insurance company will be in a hurry to pay the compensation amount for the initial apparent injury and close off the deal. When some of the problems appear later in life, the victim is left with nothing but only frustration for having closed the insurance deal with a meager amount.

What is a whiplash claim worth for your injury, can not be assessed speedily. So, hastily do not sign any papers and do not accept any money from the insurance company. Though the money will be useful for you and your family at the time of your accident; it is unfair to get lesser compensation amount than what you actually deserve. Though the insurance company has to be informed about the accident as early as possible; adequate compensation claim can be made a little later.

A whiplash victim, in due course of time, can claim for compensation, after being duly examined and certified by a doctor. What is a whiplash claim worth depends on the extent of the injury; which could be severe, moderate or mild. In case of mild injury, the symptoms will disappear in a few days time. If it is severe, it can render the victim incapable of doing the daily activities.

If you are worrying whether suitable compensation will be paid for your whiplash injury, seek the help of a solicitor . The solicitor after carefully reviewing the medical report can evaluate the right amount that can be claimed. If the insurers go against your compensation claim, then the case has to be taken to court.
