

After 180 Years the Democratic Republican Party Reforms on November 4th 2008

By The Democratic Republican National Headquarters

Dated: Nov 04, 2008

The Democrats have claimed to replace our party while they do not hold to the ideals or dreams of the original founders and party members of the original Democratic Republicans.

?Reformation of the party Declaration

Thomas Jefferson wrote on the state of party politics in the early 1820s:

“ An opinion prevails that there is no longer any distinction, that the republicans & Federalists are completely amalgamated but it is not so. The amalgamation is of name only, not of principle. All indeed call themselves by the name of Republicans, because that of Federalists was extinguished in the battle of New Orleans. But the truth is that finding that monarchy is a desperate wish in this country, they rally to the point which they think next best, a consolidated government. Their aim is now therefore to break down the rights reserved by the constitution to the states as a bulwark against that consolidation, the fear of which produced the whole of the opposition to the constitution at its birth. Hence new Republicans in Congress, preaching the doctrines of the old Federalists, and the new nick-names of Ultras and Radicals. But I trust they will fail under the new, as the old name, and that the friends of the real constitution and union will prevail against consolidation, as they have done against monarchism. I scarcely know myself which is most to be deprecated, a consolidation, or dissolution of the states. The horrors of both are beyond the reach of human foresight

However today I state clearly,

There are no more state banks that are National Reserves. The national reserve system is now federal under the orders of Bill Clinton. Great Change there Bill! What an infantile move and to take the sovereignty away from the state at the same time. Now back to the point.

An opinion prevails that there is no longer any distinction, that the Republicans & Democrats are completely amalgamated and it is so. The amalgamation is of principle. All indeed call themselves by the name of Republicans or Democrats, because that of Federalists was extinguished in the battle of New Orleans. But the truth is that finding that monarchy is a desperate wish in this country, they rally to the point which they think next best, a destabilized government but utter control of the Government via de-stabilization. Their aim is now therefore to break down the rights reserved by the constitution to the states as a bulwark against that consolidation, the fear of which produced the whole of the opposition to the constitution at its birth. Hence all Republicans in Congress, preaching the doctrines of the old Federalists, and still old nick-names of Ultras and Radicals. This while all the Democrats want to talk about how a vote works and how they cannot get anything done with the protocol of voting, of which one would think that there should be a new protocol for voting, criteria etc. But I trust they both will fail under their corporate misdealing with the taxpayer's money. They don't need to invent a new name because no one will believe that both are the same because they are financed by the same group. Thus the friends of the real constitution and union will prevail against consolidation, as they have done against monarchism. I scarcely know myself which is most to be deprecated, a consolidation, or dissolution of the states. The horrors of both are beyond the reach of human foresight. Both parties started out with Real American Ideals and now have become not only war profiteers but human life profiteers.

The only difference between the original party named the Democratic Republicans and the Ideals and thoughts of Madison and Jefferson is that we not only favor high spending into our armed forces overseas but demand new body armor be made for them and all of the transport they must use with little or no body armor, for example the Hummers. We do not intend to increase spending on anything at all and in fact plan to decrease spending through the centralization and consolidation of purchasing departments if there be any that are officially declared so and funnel all Federal spending through one office of many highly trained purchasing professionals. We plan to suggest the same for states so that they can reduce spending. This is of course for all spending that can be declared and not those that must be completely secret. Those types of groups have their own ways of doing things and therefore they will do their own purchasing unless it is declarable such as toilet paper and janitorial supplies, this is so you can have the lowest prices yet you buy what you want yourselves without anyone knowing. This purchasing department will have a great part about it, that is that it will have immense purchasing powers! That will drive the cost down drastically. These purchasing departments themselves won't be officially known as a part of the Government but will be under the cover of a Corporation. This purchasing department will remain in Government control. It is clear that with the abilities of this type of program how easy and cost effective it would be to buy through it. Why should anyone do this? Leave a little money left to spend, so who wouldn't take this offer up? Someone that wants to have less bang for their buck. I don't know anyone like that do you? Well besides a spy or those involved in black operations on behalf of this Great Nation.

The most important part of this announcement on the eve of the election of 2008 is that when we are elected into office we would wish that the Tri-Lateral Commission please be the first to call us because we want to be in accordance with them and the committee on Foreign Relations. In fact this correspondence is so important we will not make any decisions on any matter until one of these groups advises us. We will follow all advice from these groups always.

Other updates will follow including the National Headquarters web site in time.

I lead and now leave you with the power to return this great nation from a corporately owned oligarchy back into democracy and my pen name which indicates which two presidents I am actually related to. This is not a joke, this is history happening. In reality it makes no difference who you voted for today, they are both funded and backed by the same people.

So declared on the 4th day of November in the year of our Lord 2008, so help me GOD.

God Bless America,
Sincerely,
John Jackson Kennedy

###

Thomas Jefferson once wrote of two political parties being gobbled up into one party or joining together while having different names. He said at the time It was not so however in the day we live it is. Barak and John were funded by the same rich people. We here at the Democratic Republican Party Headquarters hope John McCain wins.

Category Banking, Business, Government
Tags politics, gas prices, defence, political, party, democratic, republican, democrat, democrats, republican, republicans
Email Click to email author
City/Town manhattan
State/Province New York

Country United States