

Don't Cut Corners On Travel Insurance During Recession

By D Tompkins

Travel Insurance USA.com has reminded people who will be traveling during the recession not to leave their finances exposed by cutting corners on travel insurance. Unfortunately, many people who do travel may not purchase travel insurance.

David Tompkins, President of TFG Global Insurance Solutions Ltd. and owner of the travel insurance web site Travel Insurance USA.com located at:

has warned that many will be tempted during this global recession to forgo purchasing adequate travel insurance in order to save money. A recession means that one has to cut corners on luxuries and if one is still able to travel this year, leaving out travel insurance may seem like an easy way to save money on a trip. However, such a decision can lead to disastrous results that can not only ruin your trip, but also cripple you financially as well.

The primary travel insurance plans that people purchase for their trips abroad are travel medical and trip insurance. Trip insurance or vacation insurance policies usually include coverage if you or your travel companion are not able to travel because of a sickness or injury either before you leave or during your trip. Such vacation insurance policies often include medical and evacuation coverage as well. You can obtain vacation insurance quotes via TFG Global Insurance Solutions Ltd.'s web sites at:

It only takes a few dollars a day to protect you and your family when traveling abroad. A small investment in your trip can save you a fortune.
