Automatic Discipline, Inc (ADI) announced today that it has become a Corporate Sponsor of the JumpStart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy.

The JumpStart Coalition consists of a wide range of organizations including Federal Agencies, Universities, Corporate Partners, National Non-Profit Associations and various sponsors of youth education programs. Formed in 1997, the Washington D.C. based non-profit organization is dedicated to a nationwide effort of improving personal financial literacy among young adults.

“This new partnership with JumpStart provides an additional avenue for ADI to fulfill one of its core objectives of helping young people learn sound financial principles,” said ADI President Clark Dowding. “We’re proud to contribute financial resources to JumpStart and look forward to working with their staff and affiliate organizations.”

ADI’s unique Debt Elimination service has a twelve-year track record helping clients eliminate all of their debt (including their mortgage) in about 9 years thus saving hundreds of thousands of dollars in debt and interest payments. The service, which conveniently automates the entire debt elimination process, does not harm a client’s credit, doesn’t require refinancing loans and requires little or no attention.

Since 1996 the flagship Debt Elimination service has been offered primarily in regional markets or as add-on solutions to financial products and mortgages. More than 15,000 clients have benefited from the service. ADI’s current marketing expansion is reaching out to the more than 20 Million US residents who potentially qualify for the service.

ADI was founded by a diverse team of hard-working individuals with a wide range of experience in the Financial Industry including former Credit Union Executives, Mortgage Bankers, Marketing & Sales experts, practicing Attorneys and financial Technology experts. Corporate headquarters for the company is located in downtown Salt Lake City, Utah.
