

Hotel Alessandra Florence: Home away from home

By Hotel Alessandra

Dated: Dec 02, 2008

If you want a hotel in downtown Florence, near the Uffizi Gallery and Ponte Vecchio, then look no further than the Hotel Alessandra. Without doubt, Hotel Alessandra is one of the most centrally located hotels in Florence.

The hotel is halfway between Via dei Tornabuoni, a street lined with designer shops and boutiques, and the Ponte Vecchio, a bridge filled with incredible gold shops; both are less than 50 meters away. The Uffizi, arguably one of the finest art galleries in the world, the famous Duomo and Bell Tower, Piazza Repubblica, and the Baptistery are all within a 5-10 minute walk from the hotel. For a different shopping experience, visitors can reach the "Straw Market", known as "Il Porcellino" (The Little Pig). Here you will find many local artisans with a variety of unique products, including items made of the famous Florentine leather. The hotel is on the second floor of a palace built in 1507 by Baccio D'Agnolo (one of the leading florentine architects and a contemporary of Michelangelo).

Those who come to visit will find a quiet and hospitable atmosphere. Located in the heart of the most romantic part of Florence, the "cradle of the renaissance", next to the Uffizi Gallery and a few steps away from Ponte Vecchio, it is within easy walking distance of every point of artistic, cultural and economic interest.
