Toronto-based ITR has successfully completed the acquisition of Calgary Time Recorder. With a branch office in Calgary, ITR is well positioned to make the transition smooth for CTR customers, and will assume support for CTR equipment immediately.

TORONTO – ITR, premier provider of workforce management systems, today announced the completion of its acquisition of Calgary Time Recorder, a provider of time and labor management products including time recorders and hand readers.

Effective immediately, Calgary Time Recorder customers may now purchase time and labor management products and services with ITR. As well, ITR will take over all existing maintenance contracts and continue to provide service and support to CTR customers through ITR's Customer Care Center.

The acquisition substantially expands ITR's Canadian presence in the workforce management industry and combines the company's key strengths – quality and cost-effective solutions, established partnerships, bilingual software and support and local in-house software development – with Calgary Time Recorder's core assets.

“This strategic combination further strengthens ITR's leadership position as a workforce management solutions provider and will enable us to deliver even greater value to our customers and partners,” said ITR Chief Executive Officer Tracy Parzych.

“The addition of Calgary Time Recorder products to our existing workforce management portfolio puts ITR in a unique position to meet the evolving needs of our customers demanding higher quality and more accessible solutions to manage their workforce,” added Parzych. “We welcome Calgary Time Recorder's employees, customers and partners to ITR and we look forward to working with them to grow in the marketplace.”
