Use for a Photo Wedding Invitation

Wedding invitations are often not very unique, especially for semi-formal and formal events. However, you could change your invitation and not only make it unique but also make it a valued keepsake for recipients. Photo anniversary invitations, <http://www.announcements-shoppe.com/Photo-Invitations-Ann...> are also excellent for this. You can choose from a wide range of ideas for the cards as well. If you've had engagement shots taken together, they can be an excellent option and make excellent wedding photo invites. You could also dig up some older pictures, including baby pictures of both of you, pictures of the two of you in your early years of your relationship or similar pictures.

If you don't want to use your own images on the photos invitation you could even take a picture of the location for the ceremony or reception and use that instead. In that case, it double as a way to personalize the card and as a way to help guests locate the right place.

Use for Birthday Photo Invitations

Want a great way to make those birthday party invitations more unique? Then a photo invitation is a great option. Because most of these parties are going to be more casual, you'll have a lot more freedom in terms of the cards you choose. Plus, you'll probably only end up inviting close friends and family members of the person in question so it's going to be pretty hard to make a bad impression on recipients.

When it comes to selecting the right photo, you could be facing another challenge. One idea is to choose an older picture, especially if you're celebrating an "Over the Hill" type party. These pictures can also work for Sweet 16 parties, although they are less effective for a first birthday. With the photo birthday invitations, you could even scour the photo albums for almost any image of the guest of honor and you'll find that recipients will love it.

Another idea if the guest of honor can laugh at him or her self is to take a photograph and modify it using PhotoShop or another type of photography manipulation software. That can be quite fun and can be good for lots of laughs. Consider blowing up the photo you use into a larger shot that can be displayed at the party for the guest of honor's amusement. It's also fine to use unaltered but equally embarrassing photos but only if you know the guest of honor won't be angry.

A Good Idea for Other Occasions
