Sherman Rogers, of All Waste, LLC, Leading Commercial and Industrial Dumpster Rental Company in Michigan warns there is major risk to individuals doing dumpster diving

Detroit, MI--Dumpster Diving is the practice of searching through industrial commercial or residential dumpster trash to find items that have been discarded by their owners, but which may be of value to the dumpster diver. Sherman said "You never know what someone has put in the dumpster that could cause serious injury or hurt the individual. With the downward turn in the economy, people are do things that are risky to themselves and the owners of business. It concerns me when I see a business that is not using a secure trash system and they are hiring haulers without the proper insurance." Trash picking carries the risk of injury on broken glass or other dangerous or disgusting objects.

Mr. Sherman Rogers has set up a list of speaking engagements to make the public and business owners aware of this growing liability risk and the action they need to take to avoid making costly mistakes. In the next few months, Mr. Sherman Rogers will be speaking at local community college events and at the National Real Estate Network meeting in Romulus, Michigan
