Gastric Band v Liposuction, which one is the right thing for you?

Gastric band surgery is beneficial for those who have tried all the diet regions and perhaps have also been prescribed weight loss tablets by their GP and have failed to achieved the weight loss expected .

The band is fitted through keyhole surgery and it stays for life. it is a long term solution, it usually reduces the sense of hunger and also makes it difficult to eat too much or too fast.

The band can be adjusted, although not all clients need it adjusted - if you are losing weight nicely, there is no need to adjust, although it is advisable to have a yearly check up.

Side effects and risks of the gastric band

As with all surgery the gastric band surgery might represent certain risks. Make sure you get from your obesitologist or GP relevant information about possible complications that might be associated with gastric band surgery.
