

Underwater comic book series, Crozonia ships in April worldwide by Diamond Comic Distributors

By Beach Creative Studios, Inc.

Dated: Jan 27, 2009

Crozonia, a comic book by CGI veteran, Jim Su (Death Race, Resident Evil: Extinction, ReBoot, Spider-Man: The Animated Series, Transformers) ships in April by Diamond Comic Distributors . Available to order at local comic book stores in February.

The underwater comic book series Crozonia is finally available through Diamond Comic Distributors starting January 28, 2009.

The premise of the comic book is a war between the aquatic cities of Atlantis and Crozonia. Based on the Plato mythology, Atlantis was a war mongering civilization that was struck down to the bottom of the ocean by the wrath of the gods. Crozonia separated from Atlantis over five hundred years ago, and has never had a truly peaceful co-existence with it's former ruler. Now Atlantis has declared war, and prepares the re-unification of the underwater world.

Acaste, the princess mermaid of Crozonia is thrust into the role of leading her people. She quickly finds herself making the difficult decision of choosing between freedom and security. Matt Stark, a surface dweller caught in the middle of this battle not only witnesses this war, but may be the key to it's outcome. A stranger in a strange land tale.

Crozonia can be ordered at all comic book stores world wide using the Diamond order code: FEB094108. Shipping in April 2009.
