Unlock codes are often the easiest ways for professionals and consumers alike to remove the network lock codes from their mobile phones and Blackberry smart phones are no exception. Nextgen Servers online Blackberry code server is the only instant real time Unlock code server available today. With many well known unlock vendors sourcing their codes from Nextgen Servers.

Nextgen Servers Blackberry unlock server can be accessed 24 hours a day 7 days a week, via its custom web interface. Here customs can request their unlock codes and manage their account.

Dealers and resellers can also make use of the special tools designed for them on the site. Resellers can create accounts to give to their own customs. With full activity logging they can view all actions carried out by their customers on the site.

Unlock codes have really come into their own with more and more consumers sourcing services online, with the ease that an unlock code can be delivered to the customer, and the relative low level of support required in comparison to software based solutions.

Website Integration

Nextgen Servers also offer a full XML API for their server, allowing website and application developers to connect to the code server remotely. Allowing them to handle their customer's code requests on their own website, or from within their own applications.
