

Travel Insurance For Valentine's Trip Is Essential

By D Tompkins

Dated: Feb 10, 2009

If you are traveling this Valentine's day, make sure you purchase travel insurance to cover your emergency medical expenses and also to cover trip cancellation and interruption if you want to protect your trip costs.

Valentine's Day is just around the corner, but what does that have to do with travel? If you are traveling this Valentine's Day, make sure you purchase travel insurance to cover your emergency medical expenses and also to cover trip cancellation and interruption if you want to protect your trip costs. TFG Global Insurance Solutions Ltd. offers travel insurance through several different travel insurance web sites:

It has been reported that 66% of Canadians have taken a vacation primarily to celebrate a special occasion? According to the Ypartnership survey conducted in June 2008, the life events that most inspire Canadians to travel are honeymoons (85%), "milestone" anniversaries (76%) and weddings (67%). Not surprisingly, honeymooners are the biggest spenders. According to the Travel Industry Association of America (TIA), honeymooners spend more than three times the average traveller.

Even with the tough times in the economy, many people are determined to celebrate with travel. The retiring Secretary-General of the World Tourism Organization says the need to travel, to engage in leisure, to go on holidays, is now so deeply ingrained in the minds of people that consumers do whatever they can to continue to do so.

If you and your sweetheart are traveling abroad to celebrate Valentine's Day this year, it is critical that you protect yourself with adequate travel medical insurance and evacuation coverage. If you are worried about losing your trip costs should you get sick or injured before or during your trip, you should get a trip interruption and trip cancellation policy.
