

Miazona Announces Major Site Revision For Its Home Based Business

By Pete Westcott

Dated: Apr 11, 2009

Miazona announced today that it has updated and enhanced it's internet blogging platform to provide an even better home based business opportunity

Miazona, a Wilmington, Massachusetts based provider of a risk-free home based business opportunity announced today that their blogging platform has been totally revised and is available for new members.

The blogging platform, based on the popular Wordpress open source software, allows anyone with an internet connection the opportunity to earn extra money writing about any topic they like. Unlike many similar services, there are no fees to join, and everyone is eligible to receive income from their blogs.

Pete Westcott, General Manager of Miazona, recently stated " We looked around the internet and found that many of the sites promised great payments for writing blogs. When we checked it out, we found that only a few blogs were acceptable and therefore most blog writers didn't receive any payment at all."

Miazona uses a different payment model than most of the services currently available to people interested in a home based business opportunity. Whereas the typical blogging system pays for acceptable blog posts, all blogs at Miazona are eligible for a cut of the monthly advertising revenue. The amount of revenue generated is directly related to the traffic each blog draws.

Anyone interested in a home based business opportunity should review the website at <http://miazona.com> or contact Mr. Westcott at (978) 458-2170.
