LGN Revolution Buys Out EDC Diamond – Wow!

April 22, 2009

In some of the biggest news to ever hit the internet marketing community, the CEO of LGN Revolution, James Ward, announced yesterday that LGN Revolution has bought out EDC Diamond. Mr. Ward explained that with the merging of the EDC Diamond products and all of the functions of the EDC Diamond back office into LGN Revolution, LGN Revolution is virtually guaranteed to dominate the internet marketing world.

Since EDC Diamond is merging into LGN Revolution the name will continue to be LGN Revolution and the name of EDC Diamond will no longer exist.

Mr. Ward also explained the reason for the buyout. He attributes the economic problems with EDC Diamond's decline, hence the need for a buyout. EDC Diamond has a very high price point which most people cannot afford when first coming into a home business. The success of LGN Revolution lately has come from the fact that LGN Revolution has three different price points of $198, $498, and $998, which most prospective home business owners can afford.

He says that with the merger all of the prices currently in LGN Revolution will remain the same, including the admin fee, but with the addition of all of the great EDC Diamond products into the current products of LGN Revolution, the value that people will get for their money when joining LGN Revolution will be tremendous. Not to mention the prospective monetary gain in reselling those products.

Mr. Ward wants everyone to know that the morality, integrity and concern for its members which LGN Revolution is known for will definitely continue with the merger.

He expects the changes to be phased in and completed within the next few weeks, but has no set date yet. As any smart entrepreneur knows, this is an opportune time to join LGN Revolution.
