Free web service lets you locate, track, sync, protect, and access your iphone remotely from any web browser

TechStone Soft, the company that brought you the free MobiWee.com mobile device configuration, personalization, and security services has now released their new iPhone client (currently in beta testing).

At this point, I think everyone is well aware of the limitations of the iPhone SDK, even with the new 3.0 OS capabilities (namely the inability to run applications in the background). Given these restrictions, MobiWee offers some impressive services:

Contact Management/Backup: Allows you to remotely backup, restore, delete or add a new contact to your device from any web browser. Transfer your contacts when you upgrade or lose your phone (works on the iPhone, Android, or Windows Mobile 6.0 and above platforms).

File Management/Transfer: Manage and transfer files from any computer to your mobile device and back. File manager reads and displays files and folders, making it easy to add, remove, backup, and restore your documents, files, music, ringtones, or videos.

Locate My Device: Whether on the bus, at the airport, or simply left at work, with the mobile device location service, you're never left guessing. If your mobile device is out of (GPS) range or turned off, MobiWee location services will keep trying until it finds it. Ensure your family's safety with a family profile- designed for easy location services for children, teenagers, and elderly parents.

More About MobiWee:

In a world of personal information management, every manufacturer has an idea about how best to remotely access, backup, sync, and secure their phones. Most require their cables, their software, and ultimately, your contacts and information are stuck on their system. The Mobiwee suite of cloud services (www.mobiwee.com) is the user-centric solution to these common pain points. Users have the freedom to remotely access, backup, sync, and secure their phone over the 3GSM network or Wi-Fi (for home use)- no matter what phone, operating system, or computer the user is running (currently running on Windows 6.0 & above, Android, and iPhone with Symbian, Blackberry, and a Laptop/Netbook client in the pipeline).
