TheCouponCupboard.com, a successful, consumer-driven online forum focused on helping families save money, is proud to announce the launch of a brand new product review blog. Now you can get the coupons, the deals and the inside scoop on which products to buy.

TheCouponCupboard.com began last year. Founder, Barb Likos, started the site, after much success with the creation and sale of her original forum AFullCup.com, because of her desire to form an online community where families could interact and help each other learn how to take advantage of the savings that were available through the use of rebates and coupons.

In 2008, Barb and friend, Toni-Lynn Barber partnered once again and The Coupon Cupboard was born. Both Barb and Toni Lynn are coupon-clipping queens, who know how to work magic with their grocery dollars. One visit to <http://thecouponcupboard.com> and you'll be hooked. Far from being your ordinary coupon-clipping site, this forum has a magnetic sense of community where every member feels welcome and is able to play a part.

TheCouponCupboard.com has experienced a virtual population explosion over the last year, and has grown into an online leader with more than 30 thousand unique monthly visitors, almost 4,000 members and an average of 1,500 forum members and guests online at any given time.

The site's latest growth spurt, <http://thecouponcupboard.com/reviews>, was birthed out of a need to expand the site and offer additional review and giveaway information. The blog may be new, but the website is no stranger to product reviews or giveaways. Chaotic Communications, LLC, the parent company of TheCouponCupboard.com has enjoyed longstanding relationships with top companies which include:

McCormicks
Campbells
Egglands
Splenda
Interscope Record
Nickelodeon
Lions Gate
Paramount
Build A Bear

The site also has content partnerships with Proctor and Gamble through Studio One Networks. The addition of the review blog provides members and visitors with even more resources and insights into products and insider savings.

Whether you are a coupon newbie wanting to learn how to stretch your grocery dollar or a seasoned pro looking for a place to find the best deals, rebates, reviews and giveaway information, <http://thecouponcupboard.com> and <http://thecouponcupboard.com/reviews> are exactly what you need.
