

Earn a High School Diploma by Mail Through Continental Academy

Earning a high school diploma by mail is easy with Continental Academy. They offer several programs for students as young as 14 years old, and have a special program for adults who want to obtain their high school diploma.

June 8, 2009 - PRLog -- Continental Academy takes pride in being the most affordable regionally accredited high school in the USA. Home-schooled students receive their high school diploma by mail through the Home School Program. This program allows pupils to finish the courses at their own pace. It is ideal for students who want their study materials mailed; they learn through a traditional paper and pencil method.

They also offer two other distance learning high school programs: The E.A.G.L.E Program, which stands for Electronic Access to Globally-Leading Education, is a self-paced 16 credit online high school program for students 18 years old and above. The other option, the Foundation Program, is a 24 credit, grade 9-12 online high school program for students 14 years old and above. Lastly, there is a Transfer Credit Program that allows individuals to earn extra credits.

The school is regionally accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) and internationally accredited by the Commission on International and Trans-Regional Accreditation. This is important to note because majority of schools and government offices only recognize regionally accredited schools. Earning a high school diploma by mail ensures a brighter future for the student even when outside of the traditional classroom setup.
