Whether your son or daughter has just finished high school or college, sending out those unique graduation party invitations, <http://www.announcements-shoppe.com/graduation/> is probably going to be one of the proudest moments in your life. After all, nothing is more important to your child's future than a good education and completing this milestone is a step in the right direction. For that reason, you'll want to make sure those graduation party invites will be bringing guests to a great event. One of the first steps in the planning process should be choosing a theme and making sure that theme is evident in those graduation invitations.

School Colors & Graduation Party Invitation

If you want a fairly simple theme, consider using your child's school colors. Almost every high school and college has its own school colors and these can be easily blended to create a wonderful, consistent theme throughout the celebration. For example, if your child's school colors were blue and gray you could have purchase balloons, plates, cups, napkins, and other items in both colors then mix and match them throughout the party location to weave the colors together. You could also have the graduation cake decorated in both colors and maybe even topped with the school mascot. Obviously, the high school party invitations should also consist of both blue and gray, too.

Reflection & Printed Graduation Party Cards

Some people may remember the show "This is Your Life." On the show, important people from a person's life were brought out to talk about some of their favorite memories with the guest of honor. You could recreate a similar theme in your child's graduation party. Create a slideshow of photos from throughout his or her life. Invite friends, teachers, and others from your child's past and ask them to share some stories about the good times. For the photo graduation invitations, consider using an old photograph of your son or daughter, possibly taken when they were just starting their school career.

For high school students going to college or college graduates moving on to their masters, this can be a great theme. Consider decorating the party graduation location with items symbolizing the major your son or daughter is pursuing. You could also use textbooks as decorations - these can be purchased cheaply through online auction sites. The invitations graduation should be in a similar theme as well.

One difference is that all of the guests should give gifts that will help your son or daughter at the next stage of their academic career. For example, guests might choose to gift lamps or other dorm furnishings, gift cards for gasoline or home decorations, or even cash that can be used for textbooks and expenses during that first year. You may want to keep a list of the items your son or daughter is going to need so you can offer suggestions to guests. Make sure you mention the gift theme on the printed graduation party invitations, <http://www.announcements-shoppe.com/>
