Robert Rode from Pennsylvania travel to the Mid-Summer Festival to exhibit his salt lamps

Robert Rode of St. Lebanon, PA is traveling northeast this summer to display his handmade talents at the Trenton Mid-Summer Festival July 10-12, 2009. His therapeutic salt lamps are very unique as no one is exactly alike. They are mined near home and he purchases them in lot and sculpts them to fit the light stand. The smallest run $30 and larger pieces can run up to $135.

In ancient times royalty used salt mines to rid themselves of aches and pains as well as respiratory problems. These candle can be plugged in and as they warm the natural salt air they produce helps relieve sinus, allergy and migraine symptoms. They reduce overall indoor pollutants and combats any negative ions being received through computer screen, television screens and other such devices.

Therapeutic Salt Lamps looks forward to showcasing their products at the July 10-12 Mid Summer Festival
