Carpooling has been there for quite some time in western countries but India is still waking up to it. Recently some websites have been launched to provide online carpooling systems and response are good. <http://www.carpoolglobal.com> is one such website that has many useful features to bring people together for a smooth carpool ride. Corporate world is also responding well to it and few of them are tieing up with these websites for their internal carpool use. People are getting worried about global warming and seriously taking steps to fight it. Carpool is in thing now in big cities of India like Bangalore, Delhi, Mumbai, Hyderabad, Pune, Kolkata etc.

"We have to seriously think about carpooling as one of the options to fight global warming before it too late" , says Kislay Komal, the owner and promoter of www.carpoolglobal.com.

"my site is not only for indian people but it can be used as a carpool tool for any city in the world", adds Kislay.

India is up there to fight global warming!!
