The Nokia 5800 Comes with Music is a phone which offers a multitude of functions, and as impressive as they may be, it is the free downloads that steals the limelight. The phone itself comes with a large 2.9 inch TFT touch screen which is the focal point of this impressive phone. A variety of sensors aid its users by automating tasks, such as a proximity sensor, which offers auto shut off when not used for long periods to lengthen battery life. An accelerometer function which ensures images are viewed in their correct aspect for optimum viewing. Handwriting recognition provides an effective method of data capture.

A 3.15 mega pixel camera displaying 2048 x 1536 pixels utilises Carl Zeiss optics, autofocus and an LED flash to help its user to take good quality images. Video at VGA quality is enabled on this phone and operates at 15 frames per second. Internet access is ably offered at 3.6 Mbps via its built in HSDPA and Wi-Fi connections. GPS with A-GPS support and the impressive Nokia maps provide navigational support. To complete the connectivity element of this phone, Blue tooth and microUSB are included, both of which are version 2.0.

The phone comes with a stereo FM radio with RDS and obviously an MP3 player, to play all the free downloads available from Nokia. It also allows all the major file formats to be played including MP3, WMA, WAV and eAAC+. Memory storage of 81 Mb internally holds numerous downloaded songs. However, if required, use of the available microSD slot offers memory expansion up to 16 Gb
