Aug. 12, 2009 - PRLog -- It's the American dream coming true, when one man can make a difference. Ed Lyman had the vision of fighting against offshore interests by putting American technicians to work locally in an online technology support company that solves the everyday computer problems of individual customers and small to medium-size businesses. keepiThome launched July 1st to keep our dollars and talents home in the U.S. where they belong.

Almost immediately, the company started receiving recognition from multiple well-known and trusted sources. Celebrity financial guru and radio show personality Dave Ramsey recently took the unusual and unique step of endorsing our new company. Ed Lyman, owner and CEO of keepiThome's parent company Prince Technologies, says, "We are very proud to receive this key endorsement from Mr. Ramsey. His commitment to helping Americans manage their money and get out of debt is legendary, and we greatly appreciate his public acknowledgment that we're on the right track with the services we offer."

keepiThome is presently partnering with key service providers to compliment our service catalog. Our service launch has been very successful and the company is off to a great start. Visit us at www.keepithome.com, and do your part to help strengthen the American economy at home.

keepiThome is an online technology support company that solves the everyday computer problems of individual customers and small to medium-size businesses. A counter-revolutionary measure aimed squarely at the U.S.A. trend to send IT services offshore, keepiThome offers a cost-effective yet risk-sensitive alternative to offshore outsourcing. Simply put, our objective is to harness American ingenuity and passion in order to provide the most effective information technology services in the world.
