

The Conspiracy Video that "Takes the Cake"

"The Moon Hoax" is a thirteen minute tour de farce through today's conspiracy culture.

Sept. 14, 2009 - PRLog -- SIOUX CITY, IA – From secret to societies to assassinations. From illegal government LSD experiments to alien antimatter disasters. From phony eyewitnesses to fictitious celebrity relatives. Jeva Singh-Anand's short video, "The Moon Hoax," has it all. Starring as Professor Benedict Zaroff of the fictitious Center for Illuminati Studies, he takes the viewer on a thirteen minute long tour de farce through today's bizarre conspiracy culture.

"Nobody went to the moon," Professor Zaroff explains, "Because the moon doesn't exist anymore."

The hows, wheres and whys involve a complicated mishmash of warring secret societies and government cover ups. To back up his dubious claims, he produces even more dubious experts and eyewitnesses, such as "1978 Nobel prize laureate" Dr. Stanton Rutherford and Neil Armstrong's "younger sister" Natasha.

The film is shot in documentary style, but it is the sloppy journalism of conspiracy theorists. It's the kind of journalism that presents Sioux City's Terra Centre as "NASA Headquarters," Singh-Anand said, and the USD student union as UC Berkeley's "Department of Astrophysics."

Viewer response has been positive so far, Singh-Anand said, although some comments have surprised him.

"Good thing you put (in) the disclaimer," one person wrote. "People might? believe this."

"I find it hard to believe that what you are presenting in this documentary is factual. At least entirely," wrote another.

To Singh-Anand, these comments indicate how powerfully hypnotic the mass media have become. The internet, which allows people to pick and choose their sources of information, has only added to the confusion. While he views the widespread proliferation of information through the web as a positive thing, he cautions that people have to critically evaluate what they see.

"People still have to do their homework in these matters," he said.

The video's cast features Jeva Singh-Anand, Edward Allen, PhD., Jacki Saeemodaeraee, Willard Freemont, and Bobie Themm-Martinez.

"The Moon Hoax" is available for free viewing at <http://www.motheroflies.com> .

=30=

--- End ---

Source	Mother of Lies
Tags	Conspiracy , Comedy , Moon Hoax , Sioux City
Link	https://prlog.org/10341672

Scan this QR Code with your SmartPhone to-

- * Read this news online
- * Contact author
- * Bookmark or share online