Summary

China's healthcare industry is entering into a new era with advance development of the infrastructure system. The industry is blessed with several advantages like large population of the country, increasing ageing population, increasing prevalence of lifestyle disease and many more. The government has also boosted the industry growth by blessing the sector with a US$ 120 Billion reform package. Backed by these all factors, healthcare sector in China is expected to outperform all other sectors in the country in terms of growth.

According to our new analytical study on the sector called "China Healthcare Sector Analysis" the China healthcare spending is forecast to grow at CAGR of over 18% during 2010-2012. Currently, the market is characterized by major changes in rural healthcare infrastructure. Anticipating the future growth, many private sector giants are looking to invest in the sector to get a pie of the chunk.

Our report has found that medical device market is expected to grow most in all other segments. The government decision to improve the healthcare infrastructure in rural areas will result in increasing demand of medical devices and equipments. Backed by this increasing demand, the medical device market is expected to grow at a CAGR of around 20% during 2010-2012. In this regard, our report provides rational analysis of various factors which will drive this market segment over the forecast period.

It also provides extensive information on Chinese pharma market with the detailed description of traditional Chinese medicines and western medicine market. It also highlights several emerging market trends like medical tourism market, healthcare IT market, telemedicine, etc. The research study gives detailed statistical and analytical review on demographics, macroeconomic indicators, disease profile, healthcare services market, key drivers and restraints. It contains all the vital information that will help clients to draw up their market strategies and assess opportunity areas in China's healthcare market.
