Performing Mangal Puja can reduce the troubles and hurdles caused due to malefic position of MARS. Its malefic position may result in the cruelty and anger to the native.

Mangal Dosh

Mangal dosh is an astrological condition that occurs if Mars in the 2nd, 4th, 7th, 8th or 12th, house of the Vedic astrology lunar chart. A person born in the presence of this condition is termed a manglik. This condition is believed by some superstitious people to be devastating for marriage, causing discomfort and tension in relationship, leading to separation and divorce, and in some cases.

It is believed to cause untimely death of one person. This is attributed to the "Fiery" nature of this planet. If two manglik marry, the negative effects are believed to cancel each other out. However, Mars is not the only planet in Vedic Astrology that is supposed to affect the relationship and these effects should be seen in a broader perspective of overall astrological compatibility.

There is also a belief that the negative consequences for a single –manglik marriage can be resolved. If the manglik first performs a ceremony called a kumbh vivah, in which the manglik "marries" a banana tree, a peepal tree, or an icon of Vishnu. Some believe that one manglik should only marry another manglik, the idea being that two negatives cancel each other out, creating a positive. Although there are "Pooja" that can be constructed to allow manglik and non-manglik to marry each other.
