Incorporation and retention of counsel will significantly enhance the WPCC's ability to serve its constituencies, communicate with public officials, and defend against those who do not have the best interests of Seminole County citizens in mind.

SANFORD, FL – The recent incorporation of the Wekiva Parkway Community Coalition (WPCC) as a non-profit organization will allow the Coalition to better serve the neighborhoods, homeowners, businesses, and churches located in the Wekiva River Basin area of Seminole County.

The Coalition is also pleased to announce it has recently retained the services of prominent Central Florida attorney and former U.S. Congressman, Mr. Tom Feeney. Mr. Feeney came to the Coalition's attention as a result of his very successful efforts on behalf of another Seminole County neighborhood organization, The Markham Woods Association.

The WPCC supports protecting Seminole County communities against unwarranted development and preserving a high quality of life; taking a sensible approach to satisfying Central Florida's transportation needs; opposing outside entities with interests inimical to those of its residents (a longstanding Seminole County tradition); and assisting political leaders committed to the above ideals, and who stand up against outside interests.

The WPCC opposes political and commercial entities external to Seminole County with little to no regard for the welfare of Seminole County residents.

Established in 2007, the Wekiva Parkway Community Coalition (WPCC), Inc. represents the interests of over 1000 homeowners, businesses, and churches located in northwest Seminole County's Wekiva River Basin area. The WPCC provides advocacy on behalf of citizens who will be negatively and unfairly impacted by the proposed alignment (Recommended Preferred Alternative) of the Orlando beltway.
