Baltimore Fashion Week brings on stylist for designers

Moving forward with the production of Baltimore Fashion Week 2010, the producers of this high fashion runway event thought long and hard about what components could be implemented to assist designers with their collection before it hits the runways, and with those thoughts several ideas surfaced one being to provide styling assistance to the designers.

Natashia Zahar Dorsey, known by the fashion week team as “Tashia” will be that added fashion component. Tashia recently assisted the production team of Butterfly Productions, LLC with the stylings for the Holiday Fashion Event at the Centre at Glen Burnie, on Saturday, November 21, 2009.

Tashia, as most fashionistas, has had a love for fashion since a young age, but don’t let that discourage you if you think her techniques are not up-to-par you would be mistaken.

“When we interviewed Tashia, we were certain that she could be an asset, but her true and professional talent came shining through with her styling techniques. Tashia’s fashionable skills were well received by the retail stores. Tashia’s knack and vision of style can be categorized as a two steps beyond regular style. We feel she is a perfect addition to fashion week and that the designers will appreciate her talents as they prepare to showcase in Baltimore Fashion Week 2010,” stated the producers of Baltimore Fashion Week.

Tashia will be present at the Designer Open Forum meeting on Saturday, December 5, 2009 at the Hotel Moneco Baltimore for any questions or comments.

Baltimore Fashion Week is scheduled for Monday, August 9, 2010 through Friday, August 13, 2010. More information is available on the website – www.baltimoresfashionweek.com.
