Nov. 30, 2009 - PRLog -- DUI lawyer and author of “Avoiding or Surviving a Florida DUI” Grey Tesh obtained a “not guilty” jury verdict for his client, a police officer who was sleep driving on Ambien. The chief DUI prosecutor in Palm Beach county told Grey Tesh “This case is impossible to win.” The client totaled his patrol car by wrapping it around a palm tree. A West Palm Beach police officer witnessed the crash. The police officer client could not get past “F” on his ABC's, continually lost his balance in the roadside tasks, and even stated he wasn't going to blow into the breath machine because he would probably blow over. Fox News Reporter Chuck Weber said the evidence against the police officer client was “damning” but he was still found not guilty. The defense at trial was involuntary intoxication. DUI attorney Grey Tesh hired an expert on Ambien CR and sleep driving as it relates to DUI. The police officer client had a couple of stiff drinks and accidentally took an Ambien CR. He blacked out as a result of unknowingly taking the Ambien. When he got in his patrol car, he was “sleep driving” and could not be held responsible for his actions.
