

Children's Progress' CEO honored as "Man of the Year"

By Children's Progress

Dated: Dec 02, 2009

Children's Progress announced today that CEO Kevin Greaney will be honored as "Man of the Year" by the Physically Challenged Irish and American Youth Team on Friday, December 4, 2009.

Children's Progress announced today that CEO Kevin Greaney will be honored as "Man of the Year" by the Physically Challenged Irish and American Youth Team on Friday, December 4, 2009.

The "Man of the Year" award is presented annually to individuals who have made outstanding contributions to education and community. Headquartered in New York City, the Physically Challenged Irish and American Youth Team (the "Team") was founded in 1987 to help physically challenged children in the U.S. and Ireland build self esteem and confidence through recreational, leisure, and sporting activities. Through scholarships and other programs, the Team also offers educational and career development opportunities. Recipients of its scholarships have attended New York University, the University of Massachusetts - Amherst, St. John's University and many others.

"The mission of the Team speaks strongly to me and I am deeply honored by this award," says Greaney, whose passion for promoting educational advancement for all children began early in life. He has taught at-risk youth in the East Harlem and Crown Heights neighborhoods of Brooklyn and was Director of the National Foundation for Teaching Entrepreneurship. As co-founder and CEO of Children's Progress, Greaney has focused the company's direction on producing innovations to help all children achieve success, regardless of socio-economic background, special learning needs or language barriers. "I believe that with the right support, every child can learn and succeed. At Children's Progress, we help provide that support through academics, and the Team provides that support through scholarships, medical care and equipment. All of this greatly enhances the lives of the children," he added.

The Team's fifteenth annual award dinner will be held at the New York Athletic club on Friday, December 4, 2009.

###

About Children's Progress

Children's Progress (<http://www.childrensprogress.com>) is an award-winning educational technology company based in New York City. It specializes in the development of engaging computer-adaptive programs for young children that help educators pinpoint how to best challenge and support each child. The company grew out of decades of research at Columbia University and patented its products in collaboration with software developers at MIT. Children's Progress products have been used in 40 states and 9 countries.

Category	Education, Non-profit, Event
Tags	children s progress, award, kevin greaney, cpaa, physically challenged irish and american youth team
Email	Click to contact author
Phone	646.443.9314
Fax	646.895.7583
Address	108 West 39th Street, Suite 1305
City/Town	New York City
State/Province	New York

Zip 10018
Country United States
Link <http://prlog.org/10436306>

Scan this QR Code with your SmartPhone to-
* Read this news online
* Contact author
* Bookmark or share online